Tim Donohue Named ADESA Las Vegas General Manager

CARMEL, Ind. — ADESA today announced Tim Donohue has been named general manager of the company's latest greenfield auction, ADESA Las Vegas. Located just 10 miles north of the famous Las Vegas strip, this brand-new whole car auction facility will open for business April 2011.

"I am pleased to have someone with Tim's industry experience and relationship skills lead our team at our newest location," said Tim DeBerry, regional vice president for ADESA's western region. "Las Vegas is a major market, and Tim's well-rounded background makes him an invaluable asset to our continued growth in this part of the country."

Donohue brings nearly 30 years of experience in the auto auction industry to his new role at ADESA Las Vegas. During this time, he has held management and leadership positions of increased responsibility for several major auction chains. Most recently, he managed operations, sales and budgeting for Total Resource Auctions as regional vice president of the company's western region.

Donohue is a graduate of Worldwide College of Auctioneering and has received numerous awards and recognitions during his three decades in the industry.

About ADESA

ADESA offers a full range of auction, reconditioning, logistical and other vehicle-related services to meet the remarketing needs of both its institutional and dealer customers.
